Work Experience

GFI Software, Malta

Product Experience Engineer (June 2015 – Present)

As a Product Experience Engineer I work closely with the design team to build elegant, functional and attractive user interfaces for a suite of software products. In my role, I am responsible for translating user feedback and usability test-results into user-friendly software interfaces that are responsive and usable on both desktop and mobile devices.

My responsibilities include:

- Understanding how businesses interact with network and security software
- Contributing in the design and hands-on development of product GUIs
- Use prototyping and wire-framing tools to create interactive mock-ups
- Developing the front-end of proposed designs using latest breed of HTML, CSS, Jscript, SASS and other modern web technologies such as MVC and Angular JS

KPMG Crimsonwing, Malta

Frontend Developer (October 2012 – June 2015)

During my time at Crimsonwing I worked with high profile clients, mostly on Magento based systems, where I was responsible for the design and frontend development of custom applications.

Although my main role was front end coding, I also invested ample amount of time on backend systems.

When required, I helped the marketing team to create advertising material as well as designs for new recruitment and further sales.

In the first two years of working at Crimsonwing, I achieved Magento Certifications (Dev Plus and Frontend).

EBN Software, Malta

Web Developer/Designer (April 2011 – January 2012)

At EBN Software I was responsible for developing new websites, nurturing web site traffic growth and improving the user experience of existing web sites. My duties also included re-branding real estate manager software for various companies.

G4S International, Malta

Administration Clerk & Copywriter (September 2007 – April 2011)

At G4S International I was employed in several different positions, starting out as a Receptionist Clerk working on a contract with the Mater Dei Hospital.

I was promoted to Clerk and Typesetter within the Head Offices where my main task entailed the redesign of all the company forms and other stationery.

Eventually, I took on a Copy-writing role where I was responsible for creating advertising for television. In this role I was also tasked with end-to-end redesign of company application forms.

Zaminox, Malta

Sheet Metal Worker / Sheet Planner (May 2006 – August 2007)

My role at Zaminox consisted of logo design using Photoshop and other related works. Given the hands-on nature of the job I was also tasked with setting up the laser machine and quality assurance of the final steel product.
